NEW WAVE IN LEARNING LIBERAL ARTS EDUCATION

Nidhi Prasad

Well, most 12th-grade students and their parents struggle to fit themselves into one of a few narrowly defined boxes, what is it going to be: Engineering, Medicine or Commerce? Little do they realize that the fields have become much vaster and varied too. As parents ask me now what careers their children should pursue and whether it is best to steer them into the science, engineering and technology fields? The best answer that I offer is "it is best to let them make their own choice". They should not, do what our parents did, telling us what to study and causing us to treat education as a chore; instead, they should encourage their children to pursue their passions and to love learning.

The pragmatic attitude taken by most Indian students and parents is certainly understandable in a Country where millions of students regularly compete for scarce college placements and job opportunities. The entrance requirements at Indian Universities have steadily risen, with certain premier colleges in New Delhi posting the mind-boggling admission cutoff, of 99 percent last year.

In this high-stress setting, students want to study whatever will land them a job, creating a college experience much more akin to "technical training" rather than intellectual exploration.

In a developing Country like India which is riddled by so many teething problems, yet whose educational aspirations are dominated by Engineering and Management, the need for liberal arts is only amplified. Lucky for us, higher education has started taking humanities seriously which previously was a strict no-no and some of the brightest students are choosing it too, giving us dedicated and uncompromising liberal arts Institutes like Ashoka University in New Delhi and FLAME University in Pune.

On the other hand, there are seasoned players like Lady Shri Ram College and St Stephens College in Delhi and Symbiosis School of Liberal Arts in Pune, which have tailored their curriculum and environment to facilitate inter-disciplinary learning.

Tackling today's biggest social and technological challenges requires the ability to think critically about their human context, which is something that humanities graduates happen to be best trained to do.

Some of Silicon Valley's brightest stars aren't engineers; they are Liberal Arts and Humanities majors. LinkedIn's founder, Reid Hoffman, has masters in philosophy; YouTube's CEO, Susan Wojcicki, majored in history and literature; Slack's founder, Stewart Butterfield, in English; Airbnb's founder, Brian Chesky, in the fine arts. Even in China, Alibaba's CEO, Jack Ma, graduated with a B.A. in English, this emphasizes that point that thinking out-of-the-box is more important rather than the stream from which one comes.

A psychologist is more likely to know how to motivate people and to understand what users want than is an engineer who has worked only in the technology trenches. A musician or artist is king in a world in which you can 3D-print anything that you can imagine.

To create the amazing future that technology is enabling, India needs its musicians and artists working hand in hand with its engineers. It isn't exclusively one

CIVIL SERVICES EXAM

MASTERING CURRENT AFFAIRS

S.B. Singh

Current affairs to the civil services exam is what the backbone is to the human body. Just as without a backbone, our body shall not get the support to stand erect, without current affairs, civil services preparation shall come crumbling on the ground. If there is one thing that defines civil services exam, it is current affairs. And if there is one thing that needs top priority, it is again, current affairs. To state a simple fact, current affairs accounts for almost sixty percent of the GS syllabus. If we take an extended view, then current affairs counts even in optional papers such as Political Science, Sociology, Public Administration Geography etc. The second paper of these optional are applied aspects of the subject with special bearing for India. And unless one knows the current developments related to the topics of these optional papers, it will be impossible to write an effective, relevant answer. Thus, one can safely say that current affairs is an all pervasive phenomenon in civil services exam and no one can get away from this reality. Sadly, few understand the importance of current affairs in this exam. Even those who are aware of its importance are at a loss to understand as to how to handle it. It results in poor preparation, poor marks and frustration among the aspirants. Therefore, a true understanding about the value and significance of current affairs is key to success in the civil services exam. This article briefly summarises current affairs in all its aspects to navigate the path of preparation for the aspirants who lack direction and purpose while attempting to cover current affairs part.

Why current affairs in civil services exam?

As we all know, civil services exam is a process to select generalists and not specialists in various administrative jobs. It follows from this that a candidate must demonstrate a good knowledge of the issues and events that have social, economic, political and administrative implications. For a career in civil services, knowledge of issues of current relevance is important to make informed decisions. Macaulay, who introduced the merit based civil services under the Charter Act 1853, said : " Knowledge is transferrable" By this what he meant was that if a candidate has a wide knowledge of diverse subjects, it will translate into his capacity to govern better. In other words, a civil servant, with a wide knowledge base, is better equipped to discharge his duties in order to meet the broader administrative goals as also to act in larger public interest. Thus, the goal of wider knowledge as advocated by Macaulay can be achieved by a good comprehension of current affairs which is made up of a very wide, diverse range of topics reported in newspapers, journals, websites and electronic media.

Current affairs: Its interface with prelims and mains syllabus

Prelims exam and current affairs: As it stands today, prelims has emerged as the most difficult part of civil services exam. Many candidates are not able to clear prelims even in 2-3 attempts. Some even do not qualify it after 5 attempts. This huge failure rate can be explained in terms of 1). Prelims being a screening test, it is more of an elimination process rather than a selection process and 2). The growing weightage of current affairs in prelims. Thus, current affairs has become a major determinant of success in prelims exam in its present format. In GS Paper I of prelims exam, current affairs accounts for 25-30 questions out of a total of 100 questions. Thus it accounts for one third of marks in prelims and sometimes even a little more. A poor performance in current affairs in prelims, thus, is bound to doom prospects of success.

How to command current affairs for prelims? It is a formidable task indeed to command current issues for the prelims because anything from anywhere can be asked in the exam. But the phrase "anything from anywhere" can be understood to mean that it encompasses certain broad areas and certain time periods. In terms of time period, the current events of last three years are from where questions are going to be set. But it is going to be a big challenge to do last three years current issues. So what does one do? Well, the answer to this question is that more focus is to be given to events of last one year as bulk of questions will be from this segment. Then, one should also quickly revise last two years current affairs (i.e. preceding the current year). To explain it further, it means that if you are going to appear in 2019 exam being conducted on 2nd June, 2019, you should focus on events between July 1, 2018 to May 15, 2019. In addition, you should also check out important issues and events which took place in 2016-17 as well as 2017-18. It will be risky not to consider last three years' current affairs and just concentrate on last one year.

Areas of current affairs to be covered for prelims:

I. Political, constitutional, legal issues: This will include major constitutional amendments, supreme court judgements, issues in RPA Act etc

II. Economic issues: Under this, one should focus on issues confronting our agriculture, industry, trade and commerce, foreign trade, inflation, export, RBI, features of budget etc.

III. Govt programs and policies: Each year a number of govt schemes are launched. One must know thoroughly about these schemes and programs which can be accessed directly from govt websites or are extensively covered in Yojana, Kurukshetra magazines.

IV. Environment: This section has come alive recently in the prelims exam and a good number of questions are being asked from this section. It requires both the basic knowledge of ecology and environment as well current happenings on this front. For example, one must know about World Overshoots Day, Earth Hour, Earth Day all of which were globally celebrated recently. Many reports on climate change have been published e.g. IPCC report, UN reports on loss of biodiversity etc. One has to look into the major findings of these reports. Special emphasis should be given to Indian environmental problems that have been recently reported in news.

V. Awards: This includes sports, film, cultural awards and also awards given to Indian personalities. For example, PM Modi has been accorded highest UAE award "Zayed Medal" this year. Similarly, an Indian teenager, Amika George was given "Goal keepers of the world" award for her movement "Free periods" which is about making sanitary pads accessible to poor women. A documentary on India called "Periods: The end of Sentence" has won an Oscar award this year. These are highly likely questions in this year's prelims exam.

VI. Science and Technology: Latest developments and discoveries in sc./tech, with special reference to India must be covered with minute details. For example, the first picture of a black hole taken by the Event Horizon telescope, the naming of this black hole as POWEHI, and the computer scientist, Ms, Katie Bouman, who developed the algorithm for this picture -such details are required to cover these scientific events. Similarly, use of technology known as CRISPR-cas9 for producing twin babies by a Chinese biotechnologist, He Jiankui and the significance of ASAT's success to India's space achievements are relevant for this year's prelims exam.

Current Affairs for Main Examination

The real test of current affairs is taken in the main exam which requires both analysis and precise writing skills on a number of current issues having social, economic, political significance. In other words, the main GS papers are closely linked with current affairs and it is unthinkable that one can do well in main examination without a substantive knowledge of current affairs.

GS Paper I (Mains): In this paper, there is a section on geography in which most questions are asked on current geographical issues e.g., melting of glaciers, warming up of Antarctica region, air pollution, changes in monsoon due to el nino factors etc. There is also a section on social issues in this paper which includes current social issues such as problems of women, elderly people, child abuse etc.

GS Paper II (Mains): This paper is heavily drawn from current issues relating to polity and international relations. In addition, it also comprises governance issues which again is current affairs based. In polity, issues like electoral reforms, judicial decisions and judicial reforms, constitutional amendments, functioning of parliament and parliamentary system in India should be paid good attention. On international relations, India's bilateral relations with its neighbours as well as with great powers, policies like Act East Policy, Neighbourhood First Policy, Indo-Pacific Policy, India's engagement with international institutions and regimes like the UN, SCO, EU, BRICS, AU etc. should be covered well with emphasis on their current aspects.

GS Paper III (Mains): This GS paper is truly multidisciplinary in nature and comprises economy, sc./tech., disaster management and internal security issues. It is obvious from these captions that they are another name for current affairs. On economy, agriculture and current issues facing it, e commerce, India's trade issues with China and US, engagement with WTO, RCEP and several more such issues need to be covered. On sc./tech., India's space and nuclear programs, artificial intelligence, etc should be extensively covered. On disaster management, our national disaster policy, preparedness on natural and manmade disasters deserve attention. On internal security, border management, illegal immigration, drug trafficking, insurgencies and ethnic conflicts in north east, naxalism are important areas from current affairs perspective.

GS IV (Mains): This paper is on ethics, integrity and aptitude. But even this paper has a close interface with current affairs. There are questions on corruption, ethical governance, issues in international relations and funding etc, which can be answered only on ones' knowledge of current affairs.

Current affairs and the Essay Paper: The essay paper can be broadly divided into two categories: 1. Philosophical essays and 2. Current affairs based essays. For example essay topics on NAM and its current relevance, cooperative federalism, agricultural distress etc which have been asked in previous years belong to current affairs only. Thus, current affairs can be quite helpful in covering the essay paper also.

Current affairs and IAS interview: IAS interview, known as personality test, revolves mostly around two areas viz; biodata and current issues. It has been observed that the best strategy to make an impression on the interview board is to answer current affairs based questions well. It is difficult to imagine facing the interview board without a good command on recent current affairs.

Sources of Current affairs: Most current affairs are news based and therefore, their origin lies in daily news. News can be derived from a variety of newspapers. One would be better off in current affairs by following news on day to day basis as reported in various newspapers. I recommend reading of at least two national newspapers and one economic newspaper daily. If there is paucity of time, one should identify the important news and preserve it in the form of clippings and peruse it on weekends. Apart from newspapers, some journals, magazines need to be consulted. Frontline, EPW, YOJANA, KURUKSHETRA, DOWN TO EARTH are extremely helpful magazines. I suggest that if possible, one should visit a good library everyday where these journals are available. If that is not possible, then one can access them online also. Some authentic websites like PIB, PRS, ENVIS INDIA are good sources of current affairs and must be made use of by the candidates.

Finally, just raw knowledge of current affairs is not adequate. They must be converted into UPSC type questions and answered in prescribed word limit. This is a habit one must cultivate to master answer writing in exam. The answers should be shown to a competent person who can advise on further improvement on writing skills.

Directions for the following 4 (four) items:

Read the following four passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage-1

Global population was around 1.6 billion in 1990- today it is around 7.2 billion and growing. Recent estimates on population growth predict a global population of 9.6 billion in 2050 and 10.9 billion in 2100. Unlike Europe and North America, where only three to four per cent of population is engaged in agriculture, around 47 per cent of India's population is dependent upon agriculture. Even if India continues to do well in the service sector and the manufacturing sector picks up, it is expected that around 2030 when India overtakes China as the world's most populous country, nearly 42 per cent of India's population will still be predominantly dependent on agriculture.

Q7. Which of the following is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) Prosperity of agriculture sector is of critical importance to India.
(b) Indian economy greatly depends on its agriculture.
(c) India should take strict measures to control its rapid population growth.
(d) India's farming communities should switch over to other occupations to improve their economic conditions.

Passage-2

Many pathogens that cause foodborne illnesses are unknown. Food contamination can occur at any stage from farm to plate. Since most cases of food poisoning go unreported, the true extent of global foodborne illnesses is unknown. Improvements in international monitoring have led to greater public awareness, yet the rapid globalization of food production increases consumers' vulnerability by making food harder to regulate and trace. "We have the world on our plates", says an official of WHO.

Q8. Which of the following is the most logical corollary to the above passage?

- (a) With more options for food come more risks.
(b) Food processing is the source of all foodborne illnesses.
(c) We should depend on locally produced food only.
(d) Globalization of food production should be curtailed.

Passage-3

I am a scientist, privileged to be somebody who tries to understand nature using the tools of science. But it is also clear that there are some really important questions that science cannot really answer, such as: Why is there something instead of nothing? Why are we here? In those domains, I have found that faith provides a better path to answers. I find it oddly anachronistic that in today's culture there seems to be a widespread presumption that scientific and spiritual views are incompatible.

Q9. Which of the following is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) It is the faith and not science that can finally solve all the problems of mankind.
(b) Science and faith can be mutually complementary if their proper domains are understood.
(c) There are some very fundamental questions which cannot be answered by either science or faith.
(d) In today's culture, scientific views are given more importance than spiritual views.

Passage-4

Though I have discarded much of past tradition and custom, and am anxious that India should rid herself of all shackles that bind and contain her and divide her people, and suppress vast numbers of them, and prevent the free development of the body and the spirit; though I seek all this, yet I do not wish to cut myself off from that past completely. I am proud of that great inheritance that has been and is, ours and I am conscious that I too, like all of us, am a link in that unbroken chain which goes back to the dawn of history in the immemorial past of India.

Q10. The author wants India to rid herself of certain past bonds because

- (a) he is not able to see the relevance of the past
(b) there is not much to be proud of
(c) he is not interested in the history of India
(d) they obstruct her physical and spiritual growth

Directions for the following 3 (three) items :

The following three items are based on the graph given below which shows imports of three different types of steel over a period of six months of a year. Study the graph and answer the three items that follow.

The figures in the brackets indicate the average cost per ton over six months period.

Q11. By how much (measured in thousands of tons) did the import of sheet steel exceed the import of coil steel in the first three months of the year?

- (a) 11 (b) 15 (c) 19 (d) 23

Read the following passage and answer the four items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passage only.

Passage

It is no longer enough for us to talk about providing for universal access to education. Making available schooling facilities is an essential prerequisite, but is insufficient to ensure that all children attend school and participate in the learning process. The school may be there, but children may not attend or they may drop out after a few months. Through school and social mapping, we must address the entire gamut of social, economic, cultural and indeed linguistic and pedagogic issues, factors that prevent children from weaker sections and disadvantaged groups, as also girls, from regularly attending and complementing elementary education. The focus must be on the poorest and most vulnerable since these groups are the most disempowered and at the greatest risk of violation or denial of their right to education.

The right to education goes beyond free and compulsory education to include quality education for all. Quality is an integral part of the right to education. If the education process lacks quality, children are being denied their right. The Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act lays down that the curriculum should provide for learning through activities, exploration and discovery. This places an obligation on us to change our perception of children as passive receivers of knowledge, and to move beyond the convention of using textbooks as the basis of examinations. The teaching-learning process must become stress-free; and a massive programme for curricular reform should be initiated to provide for a child-friendly learning system, that is more relevant and empowering. Teacher accountability systems and processes must ensure that children are learning, and that their right to learn in a child-friendly environment is not violated. Testing and assessment systems must be reexamined and redesigned to ensure that these do not force children to struggle between school and tuition centres, and bypass childhood.

Q17. According to the passage, which of the following is/are of paramount importance under the Right to Education?

- Sending of children to school by all parents
- Provision of adequate physical infrastructure in schools
- Curricular reforms for developing child-friendly learning system

Directions for the following 7 (seven) items:

Read the following four passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only. Passage-1 'Desertification' is a term used to explain a process of decline in the biological productivity of an ecosystem, leading to total loss of productivity. While this phenomenon is often linked to the arid, semi-arid and sub-humid ecosystems, even in the humid tropics, the impact could be most dramatic. Impoverishment of human-impacted terrestrial ecosystems may exhibit itself in a variety of ways : accelerated erosion as in the mountain regions of the country, salinization of land as in the semi-arid and arid 'green revolution' areas of the country, e.g., Haryana and western Uttar Pradesh, and site quality decline—a common phenomenon due to general decline in tree cover and monotonous monoculture of rice/wheat across the Indian plains. A major consequence of deforestation is that it relates to adverse alterations in the hydrology and related soil and nutrient losses. The consequences of deforestation invariably arise out of site degradation through erosive losses. Tropical Asia, Africa and South America have the highest levels of erosion. The already high rates for the tropics are increasing at an alarming rate (e.g., through the major river systems-Ganga and Brahmaputra, in the Indian context), due to deforestation and ill-suited land management practices subsequent to forest clearing. In the mountain context, the declining moisture retention of the mountain soils, drying up of the underground springs and smaller rivers in the Himalayan region could be attributed to drastic changes in the forest cover. An indirect consequence is drastic alteration in the upland-lowland interaction, mediated through water. The current concern the tea planter of Assam has is about the damage to tea plantations due to frequent inundation along the flood-plains of Brahmaputra, and the damage to tea plantation and the consequent loss in tea productivity is due to rising level of the river bottom because of siltation and the changing course of the river system. The ultimate consequences of site desertification are soil degradation, alteration in available water and its quality, and the consequent decline in food, fodder and fuel-wood yields essential for the economic well-being of rural communities.

Q27. According to the passage, which of the following are the consequences of decline in forest cover?

1. Loss of topsoil
2. Loss of smaller rivers
3. Adverse effect on agricultural production
4. Declining of groundwater

1. Deforestation can cause changes in the course of rivers.
2. Salinization of land takes place due to human activities only.
3. Intense monoculture practice in plains is a major reason for desertification in Tropical Asia, Africa and South America.

2. Deforestation invariably leads to floods and desertification.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only (c) Both 1 and 2
 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage-2

A diversity of natural assets will be needed to cope with climate change and ensure productive agriculture forestry, and fisheries. For example, crop varieties are needed that perform well under drought, heat, and enhanced CO₂. But the private-sector and farmer-led process of choosing crops favours homogeneity adapted to past or current conditions, not varieties capable of producing consistently high yields in warmer, wetter, or drier conditions. Accelerated breeding programmes are needed to conserve a wider pool of genetic resources of existing crops, breeds, and their wild relatives. Relatively intact ecosystems, such as forested catchments, mangroves, wetlands, can buffer the impacts of climate change. Under a changing climate, these ecosystems are themselves at risk, and management approaches will need to be more proactive and adaptive. Connections between natural areas, such as migration corridors, may be needed to facilitate species movements to keep up with the change in climate.

Q30. With reference to the above passage, which of the following would assist us in coping with the climate change?

1. Conservation of natural water sources
2. Conservation of wider gene pool
3. Existing crop management practices
4. Migration corridors

Select the correct answer using the code given below.

- (a) 1, 2 and 3 only (b) 1, 2 and 4 only
 (c) 3 and 4 only (d) 1, 2, 3 and 4

Q31. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Diversification of livelihoods acts as a coping strategy for climate change.
2. Adoption of monocropping practice leads to the extinction of plant varieties and their wild relatives.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only (c) Both 1 and 2
 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage-3

Today, the top environmental challenge is a combination of people and their aspirations. If the aspirations are more like the frugal ones we had after the Second World War, a lot more is possible than if we view the planet as a giant shopping mall. We need to get beyond the fascination with glitter and understand that the planet works as a biological system.

Q32. Which of the following is the most crucial and logical inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) The Earth can meet only the basic needs of humans for food, clothing and shelter.
- (b) The only way to meet environmental challenge is to limit human population.
- (c) Reducing our consumerism is very much in our own interest.
- (d) Knowledge of biological systems can only help us save this planet.

Passage-4

Some people believe that leadership is a quality which you have at birth or not at all. This theory is false, for the art of leadership can be acquired and can indeed be taught. This discovery is made in time of war and the results achieved can surprise even the instructors. Faced with the alternatives of going left or right, every soldier soon grasps that a prompt decision either way is better than an endless discussion. A firm choice of direction has an even chance of being right while to do nothing will be almost certainly wrong.

Q33. The author of the passage holds the view that

- (b) leadership can be acquired as well as taught
- (c) the results of training show that more people acquire leadership than are expected
- (d) despite rigorous instruction, very few leaders are produced

Directions for the following 8 (eight) items:
 Read the following eight passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage-1

All actions to address climate change ultimately involve costs. Funding is vital in order for countries like India to design and implement adaptation and mitigation plans and projects. The problem is more severe for developing countries like India, which would be one of the hardest hit by climate change, given its need to finance development. Most countries do indeed treat climate change as real threat and are striving to address it in a more comprehensive and integrated manner with the limited resources at their disposal.

Q49. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- Climate change is not a challenge for developed countries.
 - Climate change is a complex policy issue and also a development issue for many countries.
 - Ways and means of finance must be found to enable developing countries to enhance their adaptive capacity.
- Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
 (a) 1 and 2 only (b) 3 only
 (c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage-2

Cooking with biomass and coal in India is now recognized to cause major health problems, with women and children in poor populations facing the greatest risk. There are more than 10 lakh premature deaths each year from household air pollution due to polluting cooking fuels with another 1.5 lakh due to their contribution to general outdoor air pollution in the country. Although the fraction of the Indian population using clean cooking fuels, such as LPG, natural gas and electricity, is slowly rising, the number using polluting solid fuels as their primary cooking fuel has remained static for nearly 30 years at about 70 crore.

Q50. Which of the following is the most crucial and logical inference that can be made from the above passage?

- Rural people are giving up the use of polluting solid fuels due to their increasing awareness of health hazards.
- Subsidizing the use of clean cooking fuels will solve the problem of India's indoor air pollution.
- India should increase its import of natural gas and produce more electricity.
- Access to cooking gas can reduce premature deaths in poor households.

Passage-3

Scientific knowledge has its dangers, but so has every great thing. Over and beyond the dangers with which it threatens the present, it opens up as nothing else can, the vision of a possible happy world; a world without poverty, without war, with little illness. Science, whatever unpleasant consequences it may have by the way, is in its very nature a liberator.

Q51. Which one of the following is the most important implication of the passage?

- A happy world is a dream of science.
- Science only can build a happy world, but it is also the only major threat.
- A happy world is not possible without science.
- A happy world is not at all possible with or without science.

Passage-4

The Arctic's vast reserves of fossil fuel, fish and minerals are now accessible for a longer period in a year. But unlike Antarctica, which is protected from exploitation by the Antarctic Treaty framed during the Cold War and is not subject to territorial claims by any country, there is no legal regime protecting the Arctic from industrialization, especially at a time when the world craves for more and more resources. The distinct possibility of ice-free summer has prompted countries with Arctic coastline to scramble for great chunks of the melting ocean.

Q52. Which one of the following is the most important implication of the passage?

- India can have territorial claims in the Arctic territory and free access to its resources.
- Melting of summer ice in the Arctic leads to changes in the geopolitics.
- The Arctic region will solve the world's future problem of resource crunch.
- The Arctic region has more resources than Antarctica.

Passage-5

Being a member of the WTO, India is bound by the agreements that have been signed and ratified by its members, including itself. According to Article 6 of the Agriculture Agreement, providing minimum support prices for agricultural products is considered distorting and is subject to limits. The subsidy arising from 'minimal supports' cannot exceed 10 per cent of the value of agricultural production for developing countries. PDS in India entails minimum support prices and public stockholding of food grains. It is possible that, in some years, the subsidy to producers will exceed 10 per cent of the value of agricultural production.

Q53. What is the crucial message conveyed by the above passage?

- India should revise its PDS.
- India should not be a member of WTO.
- For India, food security collides with trade.
- India provides food security to its poor.

Passage-6

India's educational system is modelled on the mass education system that developed in the 19th century in Europe and later spread around the world. The goal of the system is to condition children as 'good' citizens and productive workers. This suited the industrial age that needed the constant supply of a compliant workforce with a narrow set of capabilities. Our educational institutes resemble factories with bells, uniforms and batch-processing of learners, designed to get learners to conform. But, from an economic point of view, the environment today is very different. It is a complex, volatile and globally interconnected world.

Q54. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

- India continues to be a developing country essentially due to its faulty education system.
- Today's learners need to acquire new-age skill-sets.
- A good number of Indians go to some developed countries for education because the educational systems there are a perfect reflection of the societies in which they function.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- 1 and 3 only (b) 2 only
 (c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage-7

The practice of dieting has become an epidemic; everyone is looking out for a way to attain that perfect body. We are all different with respect to our ethnicity, genetics, family history, gender, age, physical and mental and spiritual health status, lifestyles and preferences. Thereby we also differ in what foods we tolerate or are sensitive to. So we really cannot reduce so many complexities into one diet or diet book. This explains the failure of diets across the world in curbing obesity. Unless the reasons for weight gain are well understood and addressed and unless habits are changed permanently, no diet is likely to succeed.

Q55. What is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- Obesity has become an epidemic all over the world.
- A lot of people are obsessed with attaining a perfect body.
- Obesity is essentially an incurable disease.
- There is no perfect diet or one solution for obesity.

Passage-8

Monoculture carries great risks. A single disease or pest can wipe out swathes of the world's food production, an alarming prospect given that its growing and wealthier population will eat 70% more by 2050. The risks are magnified by the changing climate. As the planet warms and monsoon rains intensify, farmlands in Asia will flood. North America will suffer more intense droughts, and crop diseases will spread to new latitudes.

Q56. Which of the following is the most logical, rational and crucial message given by the passage?

- Preserving crop genetic diversity is an insurance against the effects of climate change.
- Despite great risks, monoculture is the only way to ensure food security in the world.
- More and more genetically modified crops only can save the world from impending shortages of food.
- Asia and North America will be worst sufferers from climate change and the consequent shortage of food.

Do you know where the Liberal Arts got its name from?

Ever wondered what it would be like to study one of the oldest subjects in the world? 'Liberal arts' is one such subject - it goes back to the Ancient Greeks who considered a liberal arts education to be the ultimate mark of an educated person.

One of the oldest subjects in the world, liberal arts originated during the most explorative period of 5th century Greece. It was regarded as the hallmark of a good education for all free men, thus the term liberal. Although it may have changed in identity, or rather expanded, it still enables society to probe the boundaries of subjects including, but not limited to, literature, language, history, philosophy, mathematics, psychology and science.

This was the knowledge that every free citizen of the nation would ideally have. And while the ideology of the liberal arts has evolved to include subjects from the world of science, management, arts, humanities and social sciences, the idea remains the same - that education is something that should prepare you to lead a successful life, not merely equip you with half the skills and knowledge required to find your place in some industry and survive.

Interdisciplinary education has become a pre-requisite and there is arising a greater need for and focus on how to put your education and skills to use. What if you get to study multiple courses from different fields to get a holistic, inter-disciplinary education in a degree program? A Liberal Arts education makes your wish come true.

WHAT IS LIBERAL ARTS TODAY?

So, in a modern context, what is liberal arts education? There are now many subjects that fall within the broad scope of the category; a typical liberal arts degree program is interdisciplinary, covering topics within the humanities, as well as social, natural and formal sciences. There are differences in the particular subjects included in liberal arts degree programs at different institutions. However, the liberal arts spectrum is generally accepted as covering the following fields:

Humanities - includes art, literature, linguistics, philosophy, religion, ethics, modern foreign languages, music, theater, speech, languages etc.

Social sciences - includes history, psychology, law, sociology, politics, gender studies, anthropology, economics, geography, business informatics, etc.

Natural sciences - includes astronomy, biology, chemistry, physics, botany, archaeology, zoology, geology, Earth sciences, etc.

Formal sciences - includes mathematics, logic, statistics, etc.

The term 'liberal arts education' can also be applied to the dedicated study of just one of the above subjects (for example, a student studying a BA in History could be said to be undertaking a liberal arts education). In general, however, the term refers to degree programs that aim to provide a broader spectrum of knowledge and skills.

The liberal arts are a set of academic disciplines that include the sciences and the humanities. When you study a liberal arts curriculum, you don't have to have one specific career goal, although you might. Instead, you'll assemble a broad foundation of knowledge that can be used in a wide spectrum of careers. You'll learn to think critically, examine the world around you, communicate effectively and adjust to changing situations. If you would like to enter a professional field such as law or medicine, many liberal arts programs could prepare you to continue your studies in a graduate program.

A liberal education is an approach to college learning, that empowers individuals and prepares them to deal with complexity, diversity, and change. Liberal Arts is a structured combination of the arts, biological and physical sciences, social sciences, and humanities, emphasizing breadth of study.

It aims to provide a learning experience that empowers students with the skills to deal with change, diversity and complexity, to make them problem solvers, critical thinkers and responsible members of the society.

Though you study multiple subjects in a Liberal Arts course, you still get to choose the subjects you wish to major in, as well as your minor subjects.

Liberal arts course offers you great freedom to build the most interesting subject combinations. For instance, if you choose Journalism as your major subject, you could choose from over 15 subjects for a minor subject, ranging from Economics, Finance, International Studies, HRM, to Literary and Cultural Studies, Music, Dance, Design, Theatre, etc.

Depending on the choice of your subjects you get one of these degrees- B.A, B.A Hons, B.B.A, or B.Sc. in Liberal Arts. Your degree depends on the stream you choose to major in. For instance, if you major in History, Economics, you get a degree of B.A (Liberal Arts) and if you choose Math's or Biology, you get a degree in B.Sc. (Liberal Arts).

Liberal Arts in India is most commonly offered as a three-year undergraduate degree. However, some universities do offer an optional fourth year. In a few universities, the curricula have in-built Liberal Arts courses, without a dedicated course to it.

WHY LIBERAL ARTS NEEDED?

What is Liberal Arts education? According to John Henry Newman, "The purpose of a Liberal Arts education is to open the mind, correct it, to refine it, to enable it to know and to digest, master, rule, and use its knowledge, to give its power over its own faculties, application, flexibility, method, critical exactness, sagacity, resource, address, and eloquent expression".

A Liberal Arts education promotes intellectual curiosity, helps in the process of creating knowledge in a range of subjects ranging from arts and humanities, social sciences to the natural and applied sciences. The Liberal education fostered to encourage creativity and independent thinking.

Increased automation, climatic changes, artificial intelligence and the vagaries of nature will call for greater resourcefulness on how we cope with change. There is endless information available today to anyone who has a smartphone and an internet connection, and it is more important for our youngsters to learn 'how to think' through complex problems by looking for solutions from different perspectives.

A strictly vocational training is nonetheless not the need of the hour and some very thoughtful scholars have indicated that in this globalized post-industrial society a totally different skill set and mindset is needed for people to survive and succeed. These are the people with a deep sense of imagination and with a mind like a parachute that functions best when it is open. An exposure to a Liberal Arts education will help to reach this goal much easily.

Liberal arts colleges aim to mold their students into well-rounded, well-informed global citizens with a wide skill set. The focus is now shifting to how good you are with reasoning,
