WORLD ENVIRONMENT DAY

CONTROLLING AIR POLLUTION

Dr. Pawan Kumar 'Bharti'

The UN Environment Programme (UNEP) every year organizes events for World Environment Day (WED), which encourages worldwide awareness and action for the protection of environment. WED is celebrated on 5 June in over 100 countries since the first day of Stockholm conference. In 2019, China will host the global World Environment Day celebrations on the theme, 'Air Pollution'.

World Environment Day (WED) is celebrated on the 5th of June every year, and is the United Nation's principal vehicle for encouraging awareness and action for the protection of our environment. First held in 1974, it has been a flagship campaign for raising awareness on emerging environmental issues from marine pollution, human overpopulation, and global warming, to sustainable consumption and wildlife crime. WED has grown to become a global platform for public outreach, with participation from over 143 countries annually. Each year, WED has a new theme that major corporations, NGOs, communities, governments and celebrities worldwide adopt to advocate environmental causes.

World Environment Day was established by the UN General Assembly in 1972 on the first day of the Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment, resulting from discussions on the integration of human interactions and the environment. Two years later, in 1974 the first WED was held with the theme "Only One Earth". Even though WED celebration has been held annually since 1974, in 1987 the idea for rotating the center of these activities through selecting different host countries began.

World Environment Day is to be held on Wednesday June 5th 2019, and is on June 5th every year. It isn't a public holiday; it is an environmental awareness day, run by the United Nations. It is sometimes also unofficially called Eco Day or Environment Day. The aim of the Day is to raise awareness of the environment and specific environmental issues.

On 15 March 2019, the head of Chinese delegation, Zhao Yingmin, Vice Minister of Ecology and Environment, and Joyce Msuya, Acting Head of UN Environment, jointly announced at Nairobi that China will host the global World Environment Day celebrations on 5 June 2019 with a theme of air pollution.

Themes

Since last five decades, World Environment Day has been raising awareness, supporting action, and driving change. Here is a glimpse of themes and recent history of last WEDs:

2019

In 2019, China will host the global World Environment Day celebrations on the theme, 'Air Pollution'.

2018

The theme for 2018 is "Beat Plastic Pollution". The host nation is India. By choosing this Theme, it is aimed that people may strive to change their everyday lives to reduce the heavy burden of plastic pollution. People should be free from the

UNDERSTANDING BASICS OF ENVIRONMENT

Shreya Bhattacharya

Environment is defined as the physical surrounding of organisms including human beings of which they are a part and on which they are dependent for their activities like physiological functioning, production and consumption. In other words, everything that surrounds or affects an organism during its life time is collectively known as its environment. It is the source of oxygen, food, habitat, energy, water and other needs for all organisms. It comprises of living (biotic) as well as non-living (abiotic) components.

Abiotic Components

Abiotic environment includes inorganic and non-living parts of the world. This part consists of chemicals like oxygen and nitrogen, soil, water, atmosphere, light and energy. The abiotic environment is made-up of many objects and forces that influence one another and the surrounding community of living things. The weather is an important group of abiotic components. Temperature, evaporation of water, humidity, rain, wind and numerous other weather conditions influence both living and nonliving things on the earth. Physical processes like earthquakes, floods, volcanoes, etc. are also part of abiotic parts.

Biotic components

The word 'biotic' means living. Biotic components are those that have life. They include living organisms including plants, animals, microbes, etc. A biotic factor is any living component that includes a number of interrelated populations of different species in a common environment. A biotic factor can be any organism that affects any other organism including animals that consume other organism and food the organism consumes. Biotic factors in an environment require food and energy to survive. They are further classified as per their functional attributes.

I. Autotrophs or Producers:

The word 'autotroph' comes from the root words 'auto' for self and 'troph' for food. Thus, autotrophs are those organisms that can produce their own food. They prepare their food using materials from inorganic sources (abiotic components). However, they feed themselves without the assistance of any other organisms. Autotrophs are also called as 'producers'. They form the base of energy pyramid in an ecosystem and provide food for all the heterotrophs need to exist.

Types of Autotrophs:

Autotrophs are classified according to the way they obtain their energy: a) Photoautotrophs, and b) Chemoautotrophs.

a) Photoautotrophs: These organisms get the energy from sunlight to make organic materials. This set of organisms perform a process called photosynthesis in which photons from the Sun are captured and used to perform food. Photoautotrophs include plants, green algae, and bacteria. They make organic compounds and fuels that give support to heterotrophs including human beings. During the process of photosynthesis, these organisms take carbon from the atmosphere, mainly from CO<sub>2</sub>, and use it to make sugars and other molecules that store the Sun's energy in their molecular bonds. This process releases molecules of oxygen that is vital for our survival. It is believed that free oxygen was not present in Earth's atmosphere until after photoautotrophs became common in Earth's seas. The release of large amounts of free oxygen into Earth's atmosphere by photoautotrophs paved the way for large animals, like ourselves. Photoautotrophs are also credited for the Earth's Ozone layer as some of the oxygen produced by them created the ozone layer, which protects life on the planet from the Sun's UV light.

UNDERSTANDING BASICS ...

b) Chemoautotrophs: These are the organisms that obtain energy from inorganic chemical processes. They use volatile chemicals such as molecular hydrogen, hydrogen sulfide, elemental sulfur, ferrous iron, and ammonia as their energy sources. They are most commonly found in deep water environments which receive no sunlight. They are usually bacteria or archaeobacteria as their metabolisms are usually not efficient enough to support multicellularity.

II. Heterotrophs or phagotrophs:

Heterotrophs consists of two words, hetero meaning other and troph for food. Heterotrophs are organisms that obtain their energy by feeding on others (or on organic compounds). These organisms cannot make their own food, so they must eat or absorb it. They depend on organic food derived from autotrophs or other heterotrophs. Heterotrophs are also known as consumers. Any heterotrophic organism that feeds by ingesting organisms or organic particles, which are digested within its body is known as phagotroph (macroconsumer). Herbivores are primary consumers which feed mainly on plants, e.g. deer, cow; whereas, secondary consumers or Carnivores feed on primary consumers, e.g. wolves. There is another set of heterotrophs that consume both plants and animals and is termed as Omnivores. Human Beings fall in this category. Besides macroconsumers or phagotrophs, there are organisms that survive on dead organic substances or detritus of plants and animals. They are mostly decomposers and are called Saprotrophs. They are microconsumers. Earthworms and other soil organisms like millipedes and woodlice are called detritivores and they play an important role in the cycling of nutrients and are an essential part of most biogeochemical cycles, such as the carbon cycle, nitrogen cycle and the phosphorous cycle.

After knowing the abiotic and biotic components of environment, we should now discuss another important concept and that is Ecology.

Ecology

Ecology is the scientific study of the relations that living organisms have with respect to each other and their natural/physical environment. It deals with the ways in which organisms are shaped by their environment, how they make use of environmental resources. It helps us understand how the world works. It provides useful evidence on the interdependence between people and the natural world and, as well the consequences of human activity on the environment. There are seven specific levels in the ecology that exist, sometimes discretely and sometimes with overlap. These levels are organism, population, community, ecosystem, biome and biosphere. At each level, these units have a specific structure and function.

Organism

They make the basic unit of study in ecology. Organisms are living beings that have the ability to act or function independently, e.g. plant, animal, etc. The organisms of the similar type have the potential for interbreeding, and produce fertile offspring, which are called species. An organism is fully adapted to its environment.

Population

A population is a group of individuals of the same species, inhabiting a geographical area, and functioning as a unit of biotic community. A population's geographic range has limits, or bounds, established by the physical limits that the species can tolerate, such as temperature or aridity, and by the encroachment of other species. Population density is the relation between the number of individuals of a population and the area they occupy.

Community

A community is the set of all populations that inhabit a certain area. It is not a rigid or fixed structure. Communities can have different sizes and boundaries. These are often identified with some difficulty. For example, a forest of trees and undergrowth plants, inhabited by animals and rooted in soil containing bacteria and fungi, constitutes a community.

Ecosystem

Ecosystem is a community of plants and animals interacting with each other in a given area, and also with their non-living environments. An ecosystem is a complex set of relationship among the living resources, habitats and residents of an area. It includes plants, trees, animals, fish, birds, micro-organism, water, soil and people. Ecosystem vary greatly in size and elements that make them but each is a functioning unit of nature. Everything that lives in an ecosystem is dependent on the other species and elements that are also part of that ecological community. If one part of an ecosystem is damaged or disappears, it has an impact on everything else. There are essentially two kinds of ecosystems; Aquatic and Terrestrial. These two can be further divided into various sub-categories like desert ecosystem, forest ecosystem, grassland ecosystem, mountain ecosystem, marine ecosystem, freshwater ecosystem.

Biome

A Biome is a large ecological area on the earth's surface, with flora (plants) and fauna (animals) adapting to their environment. Biomes are often defined by abiotic factors such as temperature, climate, relief, geology, soils and vegetation. A biome, in a way, may look like a massive ecosystem but they are not. A biome may be home to many units of ecosystems. There are some major categories of biomes on earth.

Biosphere

The term biosphere is derived from two Greek words, bios meaning life and sphaira meaning sphere. The biosphere is the layer of the planet Earth where life exists. This layer ranges from heights of up to ten kilometres above sea level to depths of the ocean. The biosphere is one of the four layers that surround the Earth along with the lithosphere (rock), hydrosphere (water) and atmosphere (air) and it is the sum of all the ecosystems. The biosphere is unique. So far there has been no existence of life elsewhere in the universe. Life on Earth depends on the sun. Energy, provided as sun light, is captured by plants, some bacteria and protists, in the marvellous phenomenon of photosynthesis. The captured energy transforms carbon dioxide into organic compounds such as sugars and produces oxygen. The vast majority of species of animals, fungi, parasitic plants and many bacteria depend directly or indirectly on photosynthesis.

While discussing Biosphere, it is important to discuss Biosphere Reserves.

Biosphere Reserve

Biosphere reserves is an area of terrestrial or coastal ecosystems promoting solutions to reconcile the conservation of biodiversity with its sustainable use. They are internationally recognized, nominated by national governments and remain under sovereign jurisdiction of the states where they are located. In 1968, UNESCO organized the Biosphere Conference, which saw the beginning of the concept of a "Biosphere Reserve". This was the first intergovernmental conference examining how to reconcile conservation and use of natural resources, thus foreshadowing the present-day notion of sustainable development. This conference resulted in the launching of the Man and the Biosphere Programme in 1970. One of the original MAB projects consisted in establishing a coordinated World Network of sites representing the main ecosystems of the planet in which genetic resources would be protected, and where research on ecosystems as well as monitoring and training work could be carried out. These sites were named as "Biosphere Reserves". These are large areas of biodiversity where flora and fauna are protected. These regions of environmental protection roughly correspond to IUCN Category V Protected areas. Biosphere reserves have three interrelated zones that aim to fulfil three complementary and mutually reinforcing functions:

- The core area(s) comprises a strictly protected ecosystem that contributes to the conservation of landscapes, ecosystems, species and genetic variation.
- The buffer zone surrounds or adjoins the core areas, and is used for activities compatible with sound ecological practices that can reinforce scientific research, monitoring, training and education.
- The transition area is the part of the reserve where the greatest activity is allowed, fostering economic and human development that is socio-culturally and ecologically sustainable.

There are 686 biosphere reserves in 122 countries, including 20 transboundary sites. In India, the government has established 18 Biosphere Reserves to protect larger areas of natural habitat.

over-reliance on single-use or disposables, as they have severe environmental consequences. We should liberate our natural places, our wildlife - and our own health from plastics. Indian government pledged to eliminate all single use of plastic in India by 2022.

2017

The theme for 2017 was 'Connecting People to Nature - in the city and on the land, from the poles to the equator'. The host nation was Canada.

2016

The 2016 WED was organized under the theme "Go wild for life". This edition of the WED aims to reduce and prevent the illegal trade in wildlife. Angola was chosen as the host country of the 2016 WED during the COP21 in Paris.

2015

The Slogan of the 2015 edition of the World Environment Day is "Seven Billion Dreams. One Planet. Consume with Care". The slogan was picked through a voting process on social media. In Saudi Arabia, 15 women recycled 2000 plastic bags to crochet a mural in support of the WED 2015. In India, Narendra Modi planted a Kadamb sapling to celebrate the World Environment Day and raise awareness for Environment. Italy is the host country of the 43rd edition of the WED. The celebrations took place as part of Milan Expo around the theme: Feeding the Planet - Energy for Life.

2014

The Theme of the 2014 WED was: International Year of Small Islands Developing States (SIDS). By choosing this Theme the UN General Assembly aimed to highlight the development Challenges and successes of the SIDS. In 2014, the World Environment Day focused on global warming and its impact on ocean levels. The Slogan of the WED 2014 is "Raise your voice not the sea level", as Barbados hosted the global celebrations of the 42nd edition of the World Environment Day. The UN Environment Programme named actor Ian Somerhalder as the official Goodwill ambassador of the WED 2014.

2013

The 2013 theme for World Environment Day was Think.Eat.Save. The campaign addressed the huge annual wastage and losses in food, which, if conserved, would release a large quantity of food as well as reduce the overall carbon footprint. The campaign aimed to bring about awareness in countries with lifestyles resulting in food wastage. It also aimed to empower people to make informed choices about the food they eat so as to reduce the overall ecological impact due to the worldwide production of food. The host country for the year's celebrations was Mongolia.

2012

The theme for the 2012 World Environment Day was Green Economy: The theme aimed to invite people to examine their activities and lifestyle and see how the concept of a "Green Economy" fits into it. The host country for the year's celebrations was Brazil.

2011

The theme for 2011 was Forests-Nature At Your Service. Thousands of activities were organized worldwide, with beach clean-ups, concerts, exhibits, film festivals, community events and much more. That year's global host, India, is a country of wide biodiversity.

2010

'Many Species. One Planet. One Future', was the theme of 2010. It celebrated the diversity of life on Earth as part of the 2010 International Year of Biodiversity. It was hosted in Rwanda. Thousands of activities were organized worldwide, with beach clean-ups, concerts, exhibits, film festivals, community events and much more. Each continent (except Antarctica) had a "regional host city", the U.N. chose Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania as the host for all North.

2009

The theme for WED 2009 was 'Your Planet Needs You - UNite to Combat Climate Change', and Michael Jackson's 'Earth Song' was declared 'World Environment Day Song'. It was hosted in Mexico.

2008

The host for World Environment Day 2008 was New Zealand, with the main international celebrations scheduled for Wellington. The slogan for 2008 was "CO2, Kick the Habit! Towards a Low Carbon Economy." New Zealand was one of the first countries to pledge to achieve carbon neutrality, and will also focus on forest management as a tool for reducing greenhouse gases. The Chicago Botanic Garden served as the North American host for World Environment Day on 5 June 2008.

2007

The topic for World Environment Day for 2007 was "Melting Ice - a Hot Topic?" During International Polar Year, WED 2007 focused on the effects that climate change is having on polar ecosystems and communities, on other ice- and snow-covered areas of the world, and the resulting global impacts.

The main international celebrations of the WED 2007 were held in the city of Tromsø, Norway, a city north of the Arctic Circle.

2006

The topic for WED 2006 was Deserts and Desertification and the slogan was "Don't desert drylands". The slogan emphasised the importance of protecting drylands. The main international celebrations of the World Environment Day 2006 were held in Algeria.

2005

The theme for the 2005 World Environment Day was "Green Cities" and the slogan was "Plan for the Planet!".

World Environment Day (WED) was established in 1972 but first held in 1974, which shows that concern about the environment goes back several decades at least. 143 countries take part in World Environment Day, and the day focuses on environmental concerns ranging from pollution to global warming and sustainable food production to protection of wildlife.

World Environment Day can be celebrated in many ways, activities such as clear up campaigns are popular and will be prominent this year, also concerts, conventions and parades, tree planting, and lectures. Promotional materials for the day tend to be created using natural environmental colours.

Participants of WED include NGOs, governments, communities, individuals, charities, organizations and celebrities, and together they raise awareness of environmental issues. Each year a country or Nation hosts WED. World Environment Day has had its own anthem since 2013.

World Environment Day Anthem

An Earth Anthem penned by poet Abhay K is sung to celebrate World Environment Day.

Our cosmic oasis, cosmic blue pearl the most beautiful planet in the universe

all the continents and the oceans united we stand as flora and fauna united we stand as species of one earth different cultures, beliefs and ways

we are humans, the earth is our home

all the people and the nations of the world

all for one and one for all united we unfurl the blue flag.

It was launched in June 2013 on the occasion of the World Environment Day by Kapil Sibal and Shashi Tharoor, then Union Ministers of India, at a function organized by the Indian Council of Cultural Relations in New Delhi. It is supported by the global organization Habitat For Humanity.

WED 2019 theme:

Air Pollution

Air pollution occurs when harmful or excessive quantities of substances including gases, particles, and biological molecules are introduced into Earth's atmosphere. It may cause diseases, allergies and even death to humans; it may also cause harm to other living organisms such as animals and food crops, and may damage the natural or built environment. Both human activity and natural processes can generate air pollution.

Indoor air pollution and poor urban air quality are listed as two of the world's worst toxic pollution problems in the 2008 Blacksmith Institute World's Worst Polluted Places report. According to the 2014 World Health Organization report, air pollution in 2012 caused the deaths of around 7 million people worldwide, an estimate roughly echoed by one from the International Energy Agency.

An air pollutant is a material in the air that can have adverse effects on humans and the ecosystem. The substance can be solid particles, liquid droplets, or gases. A pollutant can be of natural origin or man-made. Pollutants are classified as primary or secondary. Primary pollutants are usually produced by processes such as ash from a volcanic eruption. Other examples include carbon monoxide gas from motor vehicle exhausts or sulphur dioxide released from the factories. Secondary pollutants are not emitted directly. Rather, they form in the air when primary pollutants react or interact. Ground level ozone is a prominent example of secondary pollutants. Some pollutants may be both primary and secondary: they are both emitted directly and formed from other primary pollutants.

Air pollution is a mixture of natural and man-made substances in the air we breathe. It is typically separated into two categories:

Outdoor air pollution

involves exposures that take place outside of the built environment. Examples include:

- ♦ Fine particles produced by the burning of fossil fuels
- ♦ Noxious gases (sulphur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, carbon monoxide, chemical vapors, etc.)
- ♦ Ground-level ozone (a reactive form of oxygen and a primary component of urban smog)
- ♦ Tobacco Smoke

Indoor air pollution involves exposures to particulates, carbon oxides, and other pollutants carried by indoor air or dust. Examples include:

- ♦ Gases (carbon monoxide, radon, etc.)
- ♦ Household products and chemicals
- ♦ Building materials (asbestos, formaldehyde, lead, etc.)
- ♦ Outdoor indoor allergens (cockroach and mouse dropping, etc.)
- ♦ Tobacco smoke
- ♦ Mold and pollen

Human exposure

Air pollution risk is a function of the hazard of the pollutant and the exposure to that pollutant. Air pollution exposure can be expressed for an individual, for certain groups, or for entire populations. For example, one may want to calculate the exposure to a hazardous air pollutant for a geographic area, which includes the various microenvironments and age groups. This can be calculated as an inhalation exposure. This would account for daily exposure in various. The exposure needs to include different age and other demographic groups, especially infants, children, pregnant women and other sensitive subpopulations. The exposure to an air pollutant must integrate the concentrations of the air pollutant with respect to the time spent in each setting and the respective inhalation rates for each subgroup for each specific time that the subgroup is in the setting and engaged in particular activities. The daily exposure, then, needs to reflect the time spent in each micro-environmental setting and the type of activities in these settings. The air pollutant concentration in each micro-activity/micro-environmental setting is summed to indicate the exposure. For some pollutants such as black carbon, traffic related exposures may dominate total exposure despite short exposure times since high concentrations coincide with proximity to major roads or participation to traffic.

Health effects

In 2012, air pollution caused premature deaths on average of 1 year in Europe, and was a significant risk factor for a number of pollution-related diseases, including respiratory infections, heart disease, COPD, stroke and lung cancer. The health effects caused by air pollution may include difficulty in breathing, wheezing, coughing, asthma and worsening of existing respiratory and cardiac conditions. These effects can result in increased medication use, increased doctor or

Control devices

The following items are commonly used as pollution control devices in industry and transportation. They can either destroy contaminants or remove them from an exhaust stream genetics. The most common sources of air pollution include particulates, ozone, nitrogen dioxide, and sulphur dioxide. Children aged less than five years that live in developing countries are the most vulnerable population in terms of total deaths attributable to indoor and outdoor air pollution.

Reduction efforts

Various air pollution control technologies and strategies are available to reduce air pollution. At its most basic level, land-use planning is likely to involve zoning and transport infrastructure planning. In most developed countries, land-use planning is an important part of social policy, ensuring that land is used efficiently for the benefit of the wider economy and population, as well as to protect the environment.

Because a large share of air pollution is caused by combustion of fossil fuels such as coal and oil, the reduction of these fuels can reduce air pollution drastically. Most effective is the switch to clean power sources such as wind power, solar power, hydro power which don't cause air pollution. Efforts to reduce pollution from mobile sources includes primary regulation (many developing countries have permissive regulations), expanding regulation to new sources (such as cruise and transport ships, farm equipment, and small gas-powered equipment such as string trimmers, chainsaws, and snowmobiles), increased fuel efficiency (such as through the use of hybrid vehicles), conversion to cleaner fuels or conversion to electric vehicles.

Titanium dioxide has been researched for its ability to reduce air pollution. Ultraviolet light will release free electrons from material, thereby creating free radicals, which break up VOCs and NOx gases. One form is superhydrophilic.

before it is emitted into the atmosphere.

Modi Govt Re-elected With Thumping Majority

- Sealing its phenomenal electoral victory, Shri Narendra Modi-led BJP crossed the 300 mark and was leading in one seat as counting for votes for 542 Lok Sabha seats neared its end on May 24. The NDA's tally is 351.
- Election Commission figures showed that the BJP has won 302 seats and was leading in one.
- The massive exercise began on May 23 with early trends establishing the BJP's conclusive lead. With the BJP riding a Modi wave that took it past its 2014 tally of 282, the opposition was left way behind with the Congress winning only 52 seats, two less than it needs for a Leader of Opposition post in the lower house and marginally more than the 44 it got in the last general elections.
- Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi has termed his party's victory as the victory of democracy. Addressing a gathering at party headquarters in New Delhi, he said this is democracy's biggest event. Mr Modi dedicated this victory to the people saying it is a mandate for a new India.
- Earlier in a tweet, the Prime Minister said, India has won yet again following Lok Sabha poll verdict. Shri Modi said, the faith placed by the people in their alliance gives them strength to work even harder to fulfill people's aspirations.
- Regional parties followed the Congress in the electoral table. The DMK with 23 wins, the Trinamool Congress and the YSR Congress with 22 each, the Shiv Sena with 18 and the Janata Dal-United with 16 made their presence felt in an election. Left parties CPI and CPI-M were left with five seats -- three for the CPI-M and two for the CPI. This is about half of their tally of 10 in 2014.
- Congress Leader Sonia Gandhi retained Rai Bareilly while the party president Rahul Gandhi lost Amethi to Union Minister Smriti Irani by a margin of over 55,000 votes. Union Minister Maneka Gandhi won from Sultanpur. Other Union Ministers who emerged victorious include General VK Singh from Ghaziabad, Mahesh Sharma from Gautam Buddha Nagar, Santosh Kumar Gangwar from Bareilly, Anupriya Patel of NDA ally Apna Dal(S) from Mirzapur, Dr. Satyapal Singh from Baghpat and Niranjana Jyoti from Fatehpur.

- In Gujarat, the BJP has won all the 26 Lok Sabha seats at stake as the people in the home state of Prime Minister Narendra Modi stood firmly behind him for the second consecutive time after 2014.
- In Tamil Nadu, DMK-led UPA has wrested 37 of 38 seats from the AIADMK in the Lok Sabha elections. State ruling party retained only the Theni seat. Congress candidate Su Thirunavukkarasar won by biggest margin of over 4 lakh 59 thousand votes in Tiruchirapalli seat and the VCK leader and DMK ally Thol Tirumavalavan won by the thin margin of 3219 votes.
- In one of the biggest ever assembly bye-elections in the state, AIADMK bagged nine seats, whereas DMK won in 13. DMK's strength in the Assembly has now gone up to 110 while the ruling AIADMK has increased its tally to maintain a comfortable majority on the floor of the house.
- The DMK has emerged as the second largest opposition party in the Lok Sabha. Within the state, the people have given a mandate for the ruling dispensation to save itself from any loss of majority in the Assembly. Parties like PMK, DMDK, Puthiya Tamizhagam, AMMK floated by TTV Dinakaran, actor Kamal Haasan's fledgling Makkal Needhi Maiyam and Naam Tamilar party have drawn a blank in both the Parliament elections and the Assembly bye-elections.
